

Mr. Smith

Thank you for taking time to outline your grievances to me. Though I am not sure whether we have ever met, if we have, I regret that the circumstances of our meeting appear to have caused you to think that I was not a person of Christian faith and convictions. Though not perfect, I am.

Regarding the problems of others you generally identify, I am a part of a group of Christian attorneys who, when time allows, attempt to assist members of the Christian community, often on a pro bono basis, with such matters. If you have specific problems and people you wish to refer (along with a brief description of the legal problem and contact information about the person with the legal problem) I will be glad to pass the request on to attorneys on this list to see if anyone is able to assist. I cannot, of course, assure you or anyone else that a volunteer attorney will step forward; but I will give it a try if you provide me with this information. Again, in the interest of time, it must be brief and must include contact information for the person who needs help..

Finally, on the matter of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, all matters that come before the Commission are, by virtue of constitutional provisions, confidential and, with limited exceptions, must remain so. Thus, I am unable and unwilling to engage in a dialogue with you or others on any of these matters. Rather, should you so desire, you should direct your comments and concerns to the Commission's Executive Director and General Counsel Rick Wehmhoefer, 899 Logan Street, Suite 307, Denver, CO 80203. Telephone is 303-894-2110.

Thank you.
