

It has become tradition that every biennium the foremost Filipino American research historians gather from near and far, to share their knowledge, wisdom, and experiences, showcasing Pinoy history in tones and colors which ignite our imaginations and inspire future generations.

On July 3, 2008, FANHS will host this extraordinary event in Anchorage, Alaska where the currents of Pinoy history run strong and the depth of our pride runs deep.

From canneries to communities and from family to industry, for more than a century Alaska has been a bridge and cornerstone to the wandering spirits deep inside countless Filipino American souls.

Come and join us when we explore the root and meaning of Pinoy identity and consciousness, and together we'll add new chapters to the annals of Filipino Americana.
