

A Letter For Liberty

From

Dear Congressman/Senator:

As an American citizen and taxpayer, I am concerned about the lack of fiscal responsibility the Administration and Congress have shown during a difficult economic time.

You describe every problem as a crisis that must be fixed with massive spending, or the world will end. Every time you have done this, the American taxpayer has demanded, pled and begged that it is not necessary. Each and every time the average voter has been right, but you continue to ignore us. We have asked you not to borrow money we do not have, to pay for things we do not need nor can afford, but you continue to insist that you know better.

We The People were right that, left alone, the economy would correct itself.

We The People were right that, if you bailed out GM and Chrysler, they would still fail.

We The People were right to be concerned about Fannie and Freddie, while you insisted they were fine.

We worried about manufacturing jobs going overseas, but you promised we would have high paying tech jobs to replace them. Guess what? They are going over seas too. In every case we the uneducated, unwashed masses have shown that we understand the economy better than you. When will you listen?

Now you insist we need a government controlled health care system or the economy will fail.

Again, we say you are wrong.

If you value our opinions and our votes, then you will listen to “We The People” who have been consistently right, while you have been consistently wrong. Turning a deaf ear will cost more than we can afford. It will cost more than you can afford. It will cost you your job.
